THE CADWALADER FAMILY: A CONCISE GENEALOGY

1543 - 1850

By Milton Rubincam, F.A.S.G., F.N.G.S., F.G.S.P.

1 9 6 3

The purpose of the current paper is to present a very brief genealogy of the Cadwalader family in order to serve as a quick reference for further and more detailed researches. We do not consider here the ancient lineage extending back to the early part of the Middle Ages; we suspect such pedigrees until we have an opportunity to investigate them for ourselves. We commence our paper with Tudor ap Rhys (or Rees) ap Evan Gôch. From him down to the time of John Cadwalader, the founder of the American family, the genealogy seems to be well documented by Glenn (see the Bibliography, at the end of the paper). But even so, caution is recommended in accepting the pre-American generations until we have an opportunity to make an independent investigation.

1. TUDOR ap RHYS (REES) ap EVAN GÔCH. Of the parish of Cerrig y Druidion, county Denbigh, North Wales. Died before 12 November 35 Henry VIII (1543). Issue:
 2. Rhys Gôch ap Tudor; see below.
 3. Margaret verch Tudor. Living 12 November 1543, when she was assessed on land and tenements, goods and cattle, in the parish of Cerrig y Druidion.

THE HOOTON AND LAMBERT FAMILIES

- I. OLIVER HOOTON (HOOTEN, HOTTEN, HUTTON) was living at Ollerton, near Mansfield, Nottinghamshire, England, in the first quarter of the 17th century. There is reason to believe he was married three times within a very few years, unless there was more than one Oliver Hooton in that village at the same time. The parish registers show an OLIVER HOOTON who married ELIZABETH CARRIER, 11 May 1628. They had one son John, who was baptized 2 May and buried 3 May 1629. The very next day (4 May 1629) Elizabeth, wife of Oliver Hooton, was buried. The next record of an OLIVER HOOTON is that of the burial, on 17 June 1631, of his wife ANN. There is no record of their marriage, which may have taken place in another parish, or the Ollerton minister may have been careless and failed to enter it. The next record is the baptism, on 4 May 1633, of Samuel, son of OLIVER and ELIZABETH HOOTON. This latter couple are undeniably the ancestors of the American family now under consideration. Some time between 1633 and 1636 they removed to Skegby, another village near Mansfield, where their younger children were born and where Oliver, the father, died on 30.4mo.(June)1657, and was buried the same day.

ELIZABETH HOOTON, Oliver's wife, was famous in the annals of early Quakerism. She met George Fox in 1647, and became a dedicated member of his Society of Friends, as it was subsequently called. She became the first woman Quaker preacher in 1650, and because of her courageous defence of Quaker principles suffered imprisonment at Derby, York Castle, and Lincoln Castle. She wrote to the Lord Protector of England, Oliver Cromwell, sternly denouncing the corruption of the magistrates, teachers, clergymen, and others in authority, and in the course of her undertakings she ran afoul of a priest(minister) at Selston who beat her unmercifully. In 1661 she decided that America needed a missionary of her stamp. She came to Boston, where she was imprisoned and driven into the wilderness to die. She finally made her way back to England by way of Rhode Island and Barbados. She succeeded in obtaining an interview with England's restored Monarch, King Charles II, and told him, his Court, and anyone else who would listen, a thing or two about the corruption of his government. Probably in order to rid himself of her, His Majesty granted her a license to build a house at Boston. She returned to Massachusetts, this time accompanied by her daughter Elizabeth, but the authorities at Boston were completely unimpressed with her royal credentials. She not only was denied the right to build a house at Boston, she was denounced for her Quakerism, imprisoned, whipped through three towns in the dead of winter, and again cast out into the wilderness to perish in the freezing cold and surrounded by wild beasts. This indomitable woman survived all these ordeals, in spite of her advanced age, and in 1665 she and her daughter

ORIGINAL ARTICLES

1. The first article discusses the importance of maintaining accurate medical records in the modern hospital setting. It emphasizes the role of the medical secretary in ensuring that all patient data is correctly entered and organized for easy retrieval. The author argues that this is not only a clerical task but a critical component of patient care, as it allows for a comprehensive history of the patient's health to be maintained.

2. The second article explores the challenges faced by medical professionals in the field of infectious diseases. It highlights the need for continuous education and research to stay abreast of emerging pathogens and effective treatment protocols. The author suggests that interdisciplinary collaboration between clinicians, researchers, and public health officials is essential for managing these threats.

3. The third article focuses on the psychological impact of chronic illness on patients. It examines how long-term conditions can lead to feelings of isolation, depression, and anxiety. The author advocates for a holistic approach to medicine, one that addresses not only the physical symptoms but also the emotional and social well-being of the patient. Support groups and counseling are presented as valuable resources for these individuals.

4. The fourth article delves into the ethical dilemmas often encountered in medical practice. It discusses scenarios such as end-of-life decisions, organ transplantation, and the allocation of scarce resources. The author stresses the importance of clear communication, informed consent, and adherence to established ethical guidelines to navigate these complex situations with integrity.

5. The fifth article provides an overview of the latest advancements in medical technology. It covers topics such as minimally invasive surgical techniques, the use of artificial intelligence in diagnostic imaging, and the development of new pharmaceuticals. The author expresses optimism about the potential of these innovations to improve patient outcomes and streamline healthcare delivery.

6. The sixth article addresses the issue of medical malpractice and its impact on the healthcare system. It analyzes the common causes of errors, such as miscommunication, fatigue, and system failures. The author proposes strategies to reduce the risk of malpractice, including improved training, standardized protocols, and a culture of transparency and accountability.

7. The seventh article discusses the role of the medical secretary in the context of the current healthcare landscape. It highlights the increasing demands on this profession as hospitals strive for efficiency and cost-effectiveness. The author suggests that medical secretaries should embrace their role as integral members of the healthcare team, contributing to patient care through their organizational and administrative skills.

8. The eighth article examines the impact of the COVID-19 pandemic on the medical profession. It discusses the physical and mental toll on healthcare workers, the strain on hospital resources, and the challenges of managing a highly contagious virus. The author calls for increased support for frontline workers and a renewed commitment to public health measures.

9. The ninth article explores the intersection of medicine and law. It discusses the legal responsibilities of medical professionals, the process of medical litigation, and the importance of legal counsel in navigating complex cases. The author emphasizes the need for medical practitioners to be aware of their legal obligations to ensure the best possible outcomes for their patients.

10. The tenth and final article provides a reflective look at the medical profession as a whole. It discusses the values that underpin the practice of medicine, such as compassion, integrity, and a commitment to the betterment of society. The author encourages medical professionals to stay grounded in these values as they navigate the challenges and rewards of their careers.

were back in England. She continued her missionary work in the Mother Country. On 13 August 1671, she accompanied George Fox and others to the West Indies aboard a vessel called the Industry. They arrived in Carlisle Bay, Barbados, 3 October 1671, preached the Quaker doctrines and departed on 8 January 1671/2 for Jamaica. She died shortly after arrival at Port Royal, long famous as the haunt of buccaneers.

Of her six children at least three, Thomas, Oliver, and Elizabeth (who follows) settled in the Province of West New Jersey.

- II. ELIZABETH HOOTON, daughter of Oliver and Elizabeth Hooton, was born probably between 1633 and 1636, either at Ollerton or Skegby, in Nottinghamshire. She accompanied her famous mother on her second trip to New England, returning to Old England in 1665. On 21.7mo. (Sept.) 1669, she married at her mother's house in Skegby, THOMAS LAMBERT. They belonged to Mansfield Monthly Meeting. Thomas Lambert and his brother-in-law, Thomas Hooton, were among the signers of the famed constitution of the Province of West New Jersey, the Concessions and Agreements of the Proprietors, Freeholders, and Inhabitants (3 March 1676/77), and were among the first settlers in the colony. In 1681 he was chosen one of the Commissioners of the Province, and served as a Justice of the Burlington County Court from 1687 to 1693. He died between 20.9mo. 1693 (date of his will) and 8 Dec. 1694 (date of its probate). Several children, of whom:
- III. THOMAS LAMBERT. Born ca. 1670. Justice of the Court of Quarter Sessions, Burlington County, N.J. Member, West Jersey Assembly, and in this capacity signed the Declaration of Fidelity to King William III, 1697. Member, General Assembly of the Province of New Jersey, from 1709 until his death. On 2 June 1732, President Lewis Morris of New Jersey proposed him as a Member of the Royal Council of New Jersey in a letter to the Duke of Newcastle: "Thomas Lambert a quaker he has a verry good estate in that Division and is a leading man among those people". (The "Division" he referred to was the Western Division of the Province, and "those people" were the Quakers.) He died between 12.12mo. (Feb.) 1732 (date of his will) and 12 June 1733 (date of its probate), apparently without being confirmed as Councillor. Lambert was a tanner by occupation. The inventory of his estate, dated 27.6mo. (Aug.) 1733, valued his effects at £4827.5.9. He married (1) 2.3mo. 1695 MARGARET SCOTT, at John Scott's house in Burlington. Four daughters, of whom:
- IV. HANNAH LAMBERT. Born ca. 1714/15. Buried in Philadelphia 17.1mo. 1788, aged 73. Married 15 June 1733, Dr. THOMAS CADWALADER (above).

Chestertown, Kent Co., Md., 15 Jan. 1770; d. Frederick, Md., 18 Oct. 1829). Résumé of his career: Member, Maryland House of Delegates, 1795. State Senator, 1801-6. Judge of the Levy Court of Washington Co., Md., 1806-10, 1822-26. Brigadier-General, Maryland Militia, 7 July 1810 (and served in the War of 1812). Member of Congress, 1810-15, 1817-21. Retired to his estate, "Fountain Rock", near Hagerstown, Washington Co., Md. Buried in Fountain Rock Cemetery. 11 children, of whom Cadwalader Ringgold (1802-67) was a Rear-Admiral in the United States Navy.

Issue by the 2nd wife, Williamina Bond:

42. Thomas; b. 28 Oct. 1779; d. 31 Oct. 1841. Lieutenant-Colonel of Cavalry, later Brigadier-General and Major-General, Pennsylvania Militia, in the War of 1812, and subsequently. Married 25 June 1804, Mary, daughter of Col. Clement Biddle. 5 sons, including John (1805-79), Member of Congress and Judge of the U. S. District Court of Philadelphia; George (1806-79), Brigadier-General and Brevet Major-General, U. S. A.; and Henry (1817-44), Midshipman, U.S.N., stricken with fever and died off the coast of Africa.
43. Frances; b. 25 June 1781; d. at Genoa, Italy, 25 March 1843; m. (as his 1st wife), 16 December 1799, David Montague Erskine, afterwards 2nd Baron Erskine of Restormel Castle, county Cornwall. He was born in 1777, was Member of Parliament for Portsmouth in 1806, and served as British Minister to the United States (1806-10), the Kingdom of Württemberg (1824-18), and the Kingdom of Bavaria (1828-43). He succeeded his father, the Lord Chancellor of England, as 2nd Lord Erskine, in 1823. He died 19 March 1855, at Butler's Green, co. Sussex, and was buried at Cockfield, in that county. By Frances Cadwalader he had 10 children, of whom Thomas Americus (1802-77) and John Cadwalader Erskine (1804-82) were the 3rd and 4th Lords Erskine, respectively; Edward Morris Erskine (1817-83) was British Minister to Greece (1864-72) and Sweden (1872-81); and James Stuart Erskine (1821-1904) was created Baron Erskine in Bavaria. On 18 December 1960, General Cadwalader's great-great-great-grandson, Donald Cardross Flower Erskine, 7th Baron Erskine of Restormel Castle, succeeded a distant kinsman as the 10th Earl of Buchan and Lord Cardross. Other descendants of General Cadwalader through his daughter Frances include the late distinguished author of the Lives of a Bengal Lancer, Francis Yeats-Brown, and the 7th (and present) Duke of Portland.

Between his two marriages, General Cadwalader had an affair with a girl in his employ named Anne Dingwell (see the following section on the Dingwell family, for the few known facts about her). He engaged her on 18 February, as a nurse for his daughter Maria, and they were the parents of a daughter:

44. Sarah; b. at the Cadwalader family estate in Kent Co., Md., 3 March 1778; bap. in Christ Church, Philadelphia, Pa., 6 April 1779; m. 1796, Henry Parry, of Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania (b. in 1762 at Pentwin, Cantreff, Breconshire, South Wales; d. in Allegheny Co., Pennsylvania, 7 Oct. 1847). (For one line of their descendants, see the LINEAGE at the end of this paper.)

THE DINGWELL FAMILY; AND DAVID SAVERN

On ¹² March 1776, John Cadwalader, in Philadelphia, made the following entry in his account book:

Anne Dingwell nurse to Maria D^r To Cash p^d her on acco.^t wages w^{ch} began 18th Feb^y 1776 £1.10.-

His wife, the former Elizabeth Lloyd, had died only three days before he engaged this girl as the nurse for his infant child, Maria. She must have remained in his service for two or three years, and we presume that she was a good-looking girl to whom the General was attracted. At any rate, a child resulted from their liaison --- Sarah, who was born on the Cadwalader estate near Shrewsbury, in Kent County, Maryland, 3 March 1778. (Her son, Rees Hiester Parry, gave his mother's date of birth as 3 March 1777, and her place of birth as the Eastern Shore of Maryland --- see his sketch, published in 1885, while he still lived, in the History of Dearborn and Ohio Counties, Indiana, from Their Earliest Settlement.) "Sarah, daughter of _____ and Ann Dingwell" (so the church record reads), was baptized in Christ Church on 6 April 1779. (Ann Dingwell, adult, was baptized in Christ Church, 2 December 1776; she was obviously a convert from another faith.)

On 21 October 1780, General Cadwalader made the first of five wills, in the course of which he bequeathed "to Anne Dingwell who formerly nursed my daughter Maria the sum of fifty pounds --- to be paid in six months after my death in gold or silver coin or the value thereof in paper without interest --- I also give & devise to Sarah the daughter of the said Anne Dingwell now an infant the Sum of twenty five pounds to be paid out of the income of my estate which sum is to be paid annually to my brother Lambert Cadwalader for the maintenance of the said Child till she comes of age or marries whichever may first happen and no longer --- and then my will is & I hereby give & devise the sum of two hundred pounds like money as above to the said Sarah the Daughter of the said Anne Dingwell".

Over a year later, on 18 November 1781, Anne Dingwell married David Zavern, who had come to this country only seven years previously, probably from Alsace, since his name is that of a well-known Alsatian town. He was recorded, on 16 January 1775, as one of the passengers from the ship Catherine (John Baron, master), from London, who took the oath and declaration. All seven passengers on this vessel were consigned to Messrs.

Keppeler and Stonemetz. In three years Zabern entered military service; on 20 July 1778, he became a private in Capt. von Heer's Dragoons of the Continental Line, for a term of three years. Then, in 1781, he married Anne Dingwell, as related above, and became the stepfather of General Cadwalader's illegitimate daughter. The name Zabern was too much for the Americans to swallow, and it soon became softened to Savern. In 1783, David Savern, cabinet-maker, was included in the Federal Supply tax list for Upper Delaware Ward in the City of Philadelphia.

In his four later wills, General Cadwalader provided for his daughter Sarah, whom he almost, but not quite, acknowledged openly. (In this connection, it should be stated that his brother-in-law, General Samuel Meredith, in his will, dated 2 July 1781 and proved 27 May 1817, openly avowed the existence of his natural daughter, Sarah Meredith.) In his final will, dated 29 April 1785, General Cadwalader gave and devised "to Anne who formerly nursed my daughter Maria but is since married Fifty Pounds to be paid in Six Months after my death without Interest.--- Also I give and devise to the daughter of the said Anne who was born before the said Anne's marriage and who is now about seven Years Old, the Sum of Two Hundred Pounds to be placed at Interest by my Brother Lambert Cadwalader and the Interest to be appropriated by him for her Maintenance till she arrives at the age of eighteen Years or marries, whichever may first happen, and then the said sum of two hundred Pounds to be paid to her and the Interest to cease".

Sarah's mother received her legacy in two installments of $25 each, on 13 March 1787 (signing as Ann Saverne) and on 7 September 1787 (signing as Ann Savern). It is interesting to note that the witness to the second payment was Hannah Cadwalader, mother of General John Cadwalader.

Meanwhile, however, plans must have been made for the Saverns to move to Pittsburgh, and presumably David went first to provide a home for Anne and her daughter. He probably was the David Saven who was one of the signers of a petition to the Pennsylvania Legislature supporting a bill to create a new county (Allegheny) out of parts of Westmoreland and Washington Counties, Pennsylvania. The 1790 census of Pennsylvania shows that David Savoron (presumably a census enumerator's corruption of his name) living in "Pittsburgh Town" with one free white male (himself) and four free white females. The 1800 census of Allegheny County lists Agness Savern of the Borough of Pittsburgh, as the only member of her household, aged 45 years and upward. "Agness" could be a census taker's error for Anne Savern, and this record could indicate that David had died before 1800. Only the most extensive research will reveal the accuracy or falsity of our conclusions concerning the Saverns.

Meanwhile, Sarah, daughter of General John Cadwalader and Anne

(Dingwell) Savern, received her legacy; on 10 February 1796, Lambert Cadwalader and Philemon Dickinson, executors of John Cadwalader, entered in their Day Book the following record:

"Bond for £200 being a Legacy left to) Ann Dingwells daughter -----) 200.-- Ann Dingwell a Legacy left her by J.C. -- 50."

had
Some time in this same year of 1796 Sarah married Henry Parry, of Pittsburgh, according to a family record that can not now (1963) be located. They ~~have~~ twelve children, of whom one was named, appropriately enough, John Cadwalader Parry (1802-77). On 14 May 1804, State Senator Samuel Ringgold wrote from his estate, "Fountain Rock", in Washington County, Maryland, to his brother-in-law, Archibald McCall, in Philadelphia:

"On Thursday last just as we were sitting down to dinner with company a carriage drove up to the door, and a well dressed man and woman got out and after showing them into a private room he delivered a letter from Presley Nevill^r Esq^r of Pittsburgh--- On perusing it I found them to be the Natural Daughter of our deceased father in law and her husband a M^r Henry Parry. . . ."

The arrival was ill-timed. Maria (Cadwalader) Ringgold, the Senator's wife, was entertaining guests and was so disturbed by the unannounced arrival of her illegitimate half-sister that she declined to see her, much to Mrs. Parry's very genuine distress. In the ensuing conversation, Henry made it very clear that he thought the Parrys were entitled to financial assistance from his wife's Cadwalader relations. Ultimately the results of their visit to the Ringolds (and the McCalls, for they proceeded to Philadelphia) were beneficial. On 30 March 1806, Archibald and Elizabeth (Cadwalader) McCall, for the nominal sum of $1.00, deeded to Henry and Sarah Parry (and to the heirs of the said Sarah) a tract of land (212 1/4 acres) on the north west side of the Allegheny River, formerly in Westmoreland County but now (1806) in Allegheny County, in John Cunningham's District No. 44, numbered 105 in the plan of the said district.

Nothing definite is known concerning Anne (Dingwell) Savern's parentage. The name is not found in Maryland in colonial times except once, when the name of Edward Dingle of Worcester Co., Md., was erroneously recorded as Dingwell (Testamentary Proceedings, vol. 41, p. 117, 23 May 1765, Hall of Records, Annapolis, Md.). It does not seem to occur in Delaware records. Thus far we have found only one record of it in Pennsylvania, dated 21 January 1746:

"Robert Wakely assigns Philip Dingwell (a servant from Ireland in the snow George) to Stephen Anthony of Philadelphia, leather-dresser, for four years from Sept. 22nd 1745. Consideration £16; customary dues".

Dingwell's time of service was thus up in 1749; it appears that he either moved to New Jersey afterward, or went across the river to acquire a wife. My friend, William R. Hayden, of Arlington, Va., while conducting researches on his own family, found in the Office of the Secretary of State at Trenton, N.J. the marriage bond (dated 7th of the 11th month 1750) of Phillip Dingwell and Mary Daily. The marriage probably took place in Burlington County; two of the fellow-bondsmen were Peter Dopson and Jonathan Quicksall (the last a Burlington County name); the third bondsman was Luke _____ (surname indecipherable).

Only three other instances of the name Dingwell occur at that time:

13 October 1765: William Miller, of Nottingham Twp., Burlington Co., N.J., left $10 to Rebecca Dingwell;

28 March 1781: John Dingwell enlisted (for the duration of the war) as a private in Capt. Helms' Company, 2nd Regiment of New Jersey, commanded by Col. Elias Dayton, and deserted on 3 May 1781; and 7 March 1782: Joseph Ivins, of Mansfield, Burlington Co., N.J., bequeathed $5 to his housekeeper, Mary Dingwell.

If Anne (Dingwell) Savern had any connection with the foregoing persons, we are rather inclined to believe, on chronological grounds, that she was a daughter of Philip and Mary (Daily or Daly) Dingwell, who were married in 1750. Our researches are continuing, however, and in time we may be able to establish positively the identity of the girl who attracted the attention of the debonair General John Cadwalader.

46. Thomas McCall; b. at "Greenwood", near Trenton, N.J., 11 Sept. 1795; bap. in Christ Church, Philadelphia, Pa. 17 May 1797; d. at "Greenwood", 22 October 1873; bur. in Friends' Burying Ground, Trenton, N.J. Deputy Adjutant-General, Hunterdon Brigade, New Jersey Militia, 1830. Lieutenant-Colonel and A.D.C. to the Governor of New Jersey, 1842. Brigadier-General and Adjutant-General of New Jersey, 1842-58 (resigned). By special act of the New Jersey Legislature, was brevetted Major-General for long and meritorious service. Married 27 December 1831, Maria C., daughter of Nicholas Gouverneur, of New York, by his wife, Hester, daughter of Lawrence Kortright and sister of President Monroe's wife. They had five children, of whom Mary Cadwalader was the second wife of the celebrated physician and novelist, Dr. S. Weir Mitchell (1829-1914), whose most famous work was Hugh Wynne (1897).

Addendum, page 10, last paragraph:

We failed to state that the marriage of David Zabern and Anne Dingwell, on 18 November 1781, took place in Gloria Dei (Old Swedes') Church, Philadelphia. (Transcripts of church registers in the Genealogical Society, of Pennsylvania, Pa.)

Note:

Much has been written about the royal ancestry of the Cadwalader family. My friend, John Insley Coddington, of Bordentown, New Jersey, in a recent survey of the published accounts, has pointed out so many flaws that a thorough re-investigation of the alleged lines of descent from royal and noble families is in order.
